OVERVIEW

On November 7, 2000, the "Wartime Violation of Italian American Civil Liberties Act" (the "Act") was signed into law (see Appendix A). Section 3 of the Act directs the Attorney General to submit to Congress within a year of enactment, a report that documents the findings of "a comprehensive review of the treatment by the United States Government of Italian Americans during World War II."

Introduced in the House of Representatives on July 1, 1999, by Representatives Rick Lazio and Eliot Engel, H.R. 2442 was subsequently referred on September 24, 1999 to the House Judiciary Committee, Subcommittee on the Constitution. Eighty-six members of the House signed on as co-sponsors, and a hearing was held on October 26, 1999, at which ten witnesses testified.

The House of Representatives passed H.R. 2442 without amendment on November 10, 1999 and referred the bill to the Senate. On September 28, 2000, H.R. 2442 was reported out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, with amendments, and passed the Senate with amendments on October 19, 2000.

On October 24, 2000, the House agreed to the Senate amendments, and H.R. 2442 was presented to the President for signature on October 26, 2000. Former President William J. Clinton signed the legislation into law on November 7, 2000.

This report is a review of the World War II-era restrictions imposed on individuals of Italian ancestry. After describing the provisions of Public Law 106-451 and the findings of Congress, the report addresses arrests, detentions, internments, the exclusion of individuals from military zones, the imposition of curfews, raids on homes, the confiscation of property, and the effects on fishermen and railroad workers, all within the context of wartime orders, proclamations, and directives. The appendices to this report include lists required to be provided by the Act, as well as references to archival material relied upon and sources of additional information useful to the reader.

A. FINDINGS OF CONGRESS

As a result of its investigation and consideration of H.R. 2442, Congress presented its findings in Section 2 of the Act:

(1) The freedom of more than 600,000 Italian-born immigrants in the United States and their families was restricted during World War II by Government measures that branded them "enemy aliens" and included carrying identification cards, travel restrictions, and seizure of personal property.

United States Department of Justice

- (2) During World War II more than 10,000 Italian Americans on the West Coast were forced to leave their homes and prohibited from entering coastal zones. More than 50,000 were subjected to curfews.
- (3) During World War II thousands of Italian American immigrants were arrested, and hundreds were interned in military camps.
- (4) Hundreds of thousands of Italian Americans performed exemplary service and thousands sacrificed their lives in the defense of the United States.
- (5) At the time, Italians were the largest foreign-born group in the United States, and today are the fifth largest immigrant group in the United States, numbering approximately 15 million.
- (6) The impact of the wartime experience was devastating to Italian American communities in the United States, and its effects are still being felt.
- (7) A deliberate policy kept these measures from the public during the war. Even 50 years later much information is still classified, the full story remains unknown to the public, and it has never been acknowledged in any official capacity by the United States Government.

B. Role of the Attorney General

This report is prepared pursuant to Section 3 of the Act which directs the Attorney General to conduct a comprehensive review of the treatment by the United States Government of Italian Americans during World War II, and not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act shall submit to the Congress a report that documents the findings of such review. The report shall cover the period between September 1, 1939, and December 31, 1945, and shall include the following:

- (1) The names of all Italian Americans who were taken into custody in the initial roundup following the attack on Pearl Harbor, and prior to the United States declaration of war against Italy. [Appendix C.1]
- (2) The names of all Italian Americans who were taken into custody. [Appendix C.2]
- (3) The names of all Italian Americans who were interned and the location where they were interned. [Appendix D]
- (4) The names of all Italian Americans who were ordered to move out of designated areas under the United States Army's "Individual Exclusion Program." [Appendix E.1]

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

- (5) The names of all Italian Americans who were arrested for curfew, contraband, or other violations under the authority of Executive Order No. 9066. [Appendix F]
- (6) Documentation of Federal Bureau of Investigation raids on the homes of Italian Americans. [See infra pp. 15-25]
- (7) A list of ports from which Italian American fishermen were restricted. [Appendix G]
- (8) The names of Italian American fishermen who were prevented from fishing in prohibited zones and therefore unable to pursue their livelihoods. [Appendix H]
- (9) The names of Italian Americans whose boats were confiscated. [Appendix I]
- (10) The names of Italian American railroad workers who were prevented from working in prohibited zones. [Appendix J]
- (11) A list of all civil liberties infringements suffered by Italian Americans during World War II, as a result of Executive Order No. 9066, including internment, hearings without benefit of counsel, illegal searches and seizures, travel restrictions, enemy alien registration requirements, employment restrictions, confiscation of property, and forced evacuation from homes. [Appendix K]
- (12) An explanation of whether Italian Americans were subjected to civil liberties infringements as a result of Executive Order No. 9066, and if so, why other Italian Americans were not. [See infra pp. 25-27]
- (13) A review of the wartime restrictions on Italian Americans to determine how civil liberties can be better protected during national emergencies. [See infra pp. 42-44]

This report is confined to addressing these issues. At the outset, however, the following should be noted:

- In addition to the compilation of various lists as documentary evidence of restrictions during World War II, this report provides a narrative description of the various types of restrictions, integrated with personal recollections as appropriate. The narrative is intended to provide a context for the lists of names and should not serve as a substitute for a review of the secondary sources that deal with this period and address these issues more thoroughly.
- The legislative history discusses the experiences of Italian aliens residing in the United States, but the Act itself uses the term "Italian American," which could be interpreted as United States citizens of Italian origin. Since the research sources often did not distinguish between citizens and aliens, this report will reference "persons of Italian ancestry" and will distinguish between citizens and aliens wherever possible.

- The phrase "taken into custody," which is used in subsections (1) and (2) of Section 3 of the Act, could range from internment and extended detention to arrest and prompt release. In many cases, individuals were technically "arrested" and directed to report to the United States Attorney's Office at a designated time for questioning; these individuals, on the basis of such arrests, were not in actual custody. The lists of names appended to this report distinguish, wherever possible, the type of arrest or custody involved, but, in instances where the historical record is inconclusive, will err on the side of inclusion.
- Subsection 4 of Section 3 of the Act addresses the Individual Exclusion Program, and the report distinguishes between that formal program and evacuations from designated defense zones. Although the Act does not require a list of persons of Italian ancestry temporarily evacuated from their homes who did not receive individual exclusion orders, Appendix E.2 includes such a list drawn primarily from personal interviews.
- Subsection 5 of Section 3 of the Act addresses arrests based on Executive Order No. 9066, which was not issued until February 19, 1942. Appendix F includes additional names based on arrests prior to that date, for example, between December 7, 1941, and February 19, 1942. These arrests were pursuant to Presidential Proclamations 2525, 2526, and 2527, and other federal government laws and regulations affecting the rights of aliens.
- Subsection 7 of Section 3 of the Act concerns a list of ports from which Italian-American fishermen were restricted. All naval districts imposed port restrictions on the rights of certain aliens, including Italian aliens.
- Subsection 8 of Section 3 of the Act concerns a list of Italian-American fishermen prevented from fishing in prohibited zones. In fact, the imposition of restrictions on venturing into restricted waters applied to all vessels, whether commercial or pleasure crafts, without respect to citizenship status.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

 Subsection 9 of Section 3 of the Act uses the term "confiscated" with respect to fishing vessels. In fact, boats were requisitioned by the federal government, either through charter or purchase. Only rarely were fishing boats (or pleasure boats) confiscated, and then only for repeated incursions into prohibited waters.

In preparing this report, the Department of Justice conducted extensive research of government documents held by federal repositories in Washington, D.C., Maryland, California, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, and consulted with archivists at many other locations to determine the likelihood of identifying relevant materials among their holdings. These facilities maintain federal records retired from civilian and military agencies of the government. The federal records are organized typically by record group and entry numbers and are contained in consecutively-numbered boxes. The records within each box, usually official memoranda, bulletins, forms, and reports issued by federal agencies or officials, but sometimes letters or other documents from private citizens or groups, may be organized by subtopic, by date, by office, or in some other fashion not readily discernible. The type of organization is determined by the methods employed by the creators of the documents, by those responsible for retiring the records to the National Archives, or, under the best circumstances, after a review by archivists and the creation of detailed "finding aids." Furthermore, a document may be an original with the signature of the originating official on onion skin or bond paper, or a mimeographed copy. The record might be fully intact, missing pages, or barely legible due to age and the durability of the medium. Some records had been destroyed. At times, we reviewed records that appeared promising based on their description yet they contained nothing of significance, while other records only remotely connected to the topic occasionally yielded more useful information.

While the Department of Justice has been able to construct through official documents a chronology of federal actions taken against those of Italian ancestry, the nature of the records and recordkeeping, as well as the amount of time that has elapsed since the records were created, made the compilation of definitive lists as required by the Act difficult. The lists contained in the Appendix often constitute the aggregation of fragments of documentary evidence. It would, therefore, be incorrect to assert that no additional fragments exist that would reveal the names of other individuals affected.

The military and civilian agency records reviewed by the Department, constituting well over a thousand boxes, primarily at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. and College Park, Maryland, but also at regional archives on the East and West coasts, and at the Federal Bureau of Investigation, are set forth in Appendix M to this report.

In addition to archival research, the Department gathered information from dozens of individuals concerning their personal experiences and those of family members through workshops in Oakland, California, and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; telephone interviews; responses to website solicitations; the issuance of a formal press release for distribution to the media; close work with community leaders and Italian American organizations, such as the National Italian American Foundation and the Sons of Italy, to disseminate information about the Act and to identify possible contacts; and invaluable assistance from private researchers, particularly Lawrence DiStasi, Rose Scherini, and Robert Enea, whose efforts in this area preceded by many years our own and whose knowledge was indispensable.

Finally, the research and preparation of this report could not have been accomplished without the cooperation and assistance of archivists, historians, researchers, and the people whose personal stories are reflected here.

REPORT TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES

A REVIEW OF THE RESTRICTIONS ON PERSONS OF ITALIAN ANCESTRY DURING WORLD WAR II

I. INTRODUCTION

A. BACKGROUND

On December 7, 1941, Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, plunging the United States into war. To that point, the United States, while neutral, had provided assistance to its western allies and had prepared for the eventuality which had finally come. Among these preparations were ensuring domestic security through the regulation and patrol of its coastal areas and the identification and control of dangerous elements sympathetic to the Axis powers. With the United States' declaration of war, these activities dramatically increased and, in some quarters, reached a fevered pitch.

This report details how actions by the federal government immediately prior to and during World War II affected thousands of persons of Italian ancestry residing in the United States. The purpose of this report is to bring these events to light and to clarify the historical record.

B. ITALIANS IN AMERICA

Italians have been immigrating to the United States for centuries, settling near their family and friends from their home villages, who helped the newcomers find work. Enormous numbers lived in the Italian communities formed in their main port of entry: New York City's Greenwich Village, East Harlem, the Bronx, Brooklyn, and eventually Queens, Staten Island, and beyond. Depending on their village of origin, others moved on, as they could afford it, to similar clusters of Italian immigrants in South Philadelphia, Boston's North End, Bridgeport and New Haven in Connecticut, Providence, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Denver, San Francisco, and every large city in between. They worked as pick and shovel men building roads, railroads, sewers, and the New York City subway. They labored as garment workers, bricklayers, concrete finishers, and garbage men (known in the West as "scavengers"). The more skilled among them found jobs or opened businesses as barbers, tailors, hairdressers, undertakers, butchers, or as importers of traditional foods. Some found work as truck farmers or fishermen. During the peak years of 1900 through 1914, nearly three million persons of Italian ancestry left their homeland. Some also faced deep prejudice – a hostility toward and fear of immigrants. This contributed to the passage of the Immigration Act of 1924 which set quotas for each country of origin.

C. PRELUDE TO WAR

For United States government agencies, the likelihood of another global conflict had long been anticipated and plans were drawn for battles on foreign soil and to secure the homefront. Most significantly for persons of Italian descent, in 1936, J. Edgar Hoover, as head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, began planning for domestic measures to be taken against those with roots in the anticipated enemy nations. Director Hoover issued orders to make collecting information about any communist, fascist, or subversive individuals or organizations the highest priority and emphasized that all information was to be collected from all sources possible.³

By 1939, the Federal Bureau of Investigation had assembled information on large numbers of individuals, many of whom were of foreign extraction. Director Hoover assured the United States Congress that his lists were arranged not only alphabetically but geographically as well—suggesting the capability to apprehend such people quickly.

In June 1939, President Roosevelt directed the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department, and the Office of Naval Intelligence of the Navy Department to control and to handle the investigation of all espionage, counter-espionage, and sabotage matters. Information gathered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation was subsequently provided to the Department of Justice, and the Custodial Detention Program was established in 1940 and 1941. As part of the program, a list was created of those enemy aliens deemed "dangerous," highlighting those to be arrested and interned in the event of war, as well as those to be placed under surveillance.¹/

The Federal Bureau of Investigation drew up a list of those thought to be security risks to the nation. This list, known as the "ABC list," separated security risks into three categories of severity. The most dangerous, Category A, comprised those thought to have the greatest commitment to their nation of birth by reason of their leadership in ethnic, cultural, or assistance organizations. Those persons in Category B were under less suspicion and may have simply belonged to those organizations. Persons in Category C were known to support those organizations in some way. As Attorney General Francis Biddle later admitted, there were two problems with the lists: (1) it was difficult to distinguish ethnic affiliation from disloyalty, and (2) it was difficult to justify detention on the basis of suspicion or affiliation.

In World War I and again in World War II, the United States government concluded that any immigrant who had failed to complete the citizenship process was henceforth an "alien enemy" of the United States and subject to appropriate sanctions, including the detention of persons and the confiscation of property. According to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, 10/1 the declaration of war effects a great transformation in the status of aliens who are designated as alien enemies. These individuals then technically lose all their constitutional rights and privileges, and find that "what others [do] confidently and of right, they [do] by sufferance and doubtfully, uncertain of the restrictions of the morrow."

Established on July 3, 1941, the Office of the Provost Marshal General was responsible for domestic operations relating to prisoners of war and enemy aliens, thus granting to the military from civilian authority the control and internment of civilians. Initial arrests would be undertaken by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a division of the Department of Justice, and their initial custody and the determination of their release, parole, or internment would remain within the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice. The Immigration and Naturalization Service (also a component of the ⁹ Government documents and secondary sources refer to "enemy aliens" and to "alien enemies." In most instances this report uses the term "enemy aliens" when discussing that category of individual.

Department of Justice) had, in fact, already set up facilities and procedures for interning enemy nationals, such as merchant seamen from captured foreign ships. The Immigration and Naturalization Service controlled camps at Fort Stanton, New Mexico; Fort Lincoln, North Dakota; and Fort Missoula, Montana.

All male resident aliens who were ordered interned were transferred to the custody of the Army. Thus, the Aliens' Division of the Office of the Provost Marshal General within the War Department, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service within the Department of Justice, were to supply locations and staff for first detention (Immigration and Naturalization Service), and then internment (Office of the Provost Marshal General) for male civilians. For women, the Immigration and Naturalization Service would maintain control of both detention and internment. 14/

II. A REVIEW OF THE WARTIME RESTRICTIONS

A. INITIAL ROUNDUP, TAKEN INTO CUSTODY, DETAINED OR INTERNED

Within hours of the declaration of war on Japan, President Roosevelt issued Proclamation 2525, aimed at aliens with roots in that enemy nation, stating that "an invasion has been perpetrated upon the territory of the United States by the Empire of Japan." All natives, citizens, denizens, or subjects of Japan fourteen years of age or over who were in the United States and not naturalized had become enemy aliens, subject to all regulations concerning such persons, including the immediate apprehension of those determined dangerous by the Attorney General or the Secretary of War. The following day, December 8, 1941, two more presidential proclamations, Proclamations 2526 and 2527, were issued to cover German and Italian aliens. 16/

¹⁵ Presidential Proclamation No. 2525, 6 Fed. Reg. 6321, 55 Stat. 1700 (Dec. 7, 1941).

Presidential Proclamation No. 2526, 6 Fed. Reg. 6323, 55 Stat. 1705 (Dec. 8, 1941); Presidential Proclamation No. 2527, 6 Fed. Reg. 6324, 55 Stat. 1707 (Dec. 8, 1941). These proclamations are discussed in more detail in Section C.2.b of this report, below.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation began arresting aliens on the lists, including permanent resident aliens of Italian descent, on the evening of December 7, 1941. Attorney General Biddle stated that Federal Bureau of Investigation Director Hoover was authorized to pick up several hundred persons without warrants on an emergency basis, although the general procedure authorized the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make arrests with warrants issued by the Department of Justice. Thus, some Italian aliens were arrested prior to the declaration of war against Italy and before Presidential Proclamation 2527 designated Italians as "alien enemies." Filippo Molinari, who sold subscriptions to the Italian-American newspaper L'Italia in San Jose, California, was picked up on the night of the attack on Pearl Harbor and taken into custody. Within days, 500 aliens of different ancestries were on a train with darkened windows bound for Missoula, Montana. There, Molinari made his way "over the snow, still with slippers on [his] feet, the temperature at seventeen below and no coat or heavy clothes!" 18/1

Raids were made upon scores of persons of Italian descent, most but not all of them aliens, in the days immediately following the attack on Pearl Harbor. Persons generally were not told the specific reason for the raid, only that their arrest was "by order of President Roosevelt." 19/

Arrests in other parts of the country followed a similar pattern. In New York City, Louis Berizzi's family was awakened on the night of December 8, 1941 by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, who searched the apartment and took Berizzi away. His daughter later described that night: 20/

We were all sound asleep. My father was in his pajamas; they told him to get dressed, as they had orders to take him away. No explanation was given. They would not divulge where they were taking him. They stayed in his bedroom while he dressed, so we had no time to speak to him privately. They did not even give him time to gather personal effects or toiletries. I believe it took several days [for us] to find out that he had been taken to Ellis Island. We were pretty shaken Several days after his arrest, we learned that my father's office at Rockefeller Plaza had been locked and sealed by the Enemy Alien Custodian, and all my father's assets were blocked. In time we learned that when my brother's tuition was due at Lehigh College, we had to petition the Enemy Alien [Property] Custodian for the money to pay for it

Also in New York, celebrated international opera star, Ezio Pinza, who had filed for citizenship, was arrested and confined at Ellis Island. Only through the intervention of Mayor La Guardia and the persistence of his wife, Doris, was he permitted a second hearing. While the charges were never disclosed, it appeared that the information against him was based on the unsubstantiated accusations of a single individual that were rebutted by more credible witnesses during the second hearing. While he went on to gain his citizenship and to add to his international acclaim, the toll on his wife and family was immeasurable.^{21/}

Filippo Fordelone, a radio broadcaster in Los Angeles, was one of forty-eight enemy aliens in that area arrested in the initial roundup. His wife faced financial hardship while caring for three young daughters^{22/} (like the Berizzi's, the Fordelone's bank account was frozen under the authority of the Trading with the Enemy Act). Later, she found that Fordelone was interned at Fort Missoula, Montana.

In Hawaii, at about the same time, Mario Valdastri, a naturalized United States citizen, was taken to a large barred room in Honolulu with several other detainees. After a brief hearing, Mario Valdastri was ordered interned and shipped to the mainland "with only the Hawaiian clothes he had." Apparently, he stuffed newspapers in his clothes in an effort to keep warm. Although Proclamation 2527 was confined to aliens of Italian descent, both Valdastri's experience and government documents reveal exceptions.

Public opinion played a role in the actions of federal agencies. The Immigration and Naturalization Service's administrative history reveals that these apprehensions:²⁴ served two important purposes: [they] assured the public that our government was taking firm steps to look after the internal safety of the nation, thereby preventing the growth of war hysteria; and it took out of circulation men and women whose loyalty to the United States was doubtful and who might therefore commit some inimical act against the nation if permitted their freedom.

According to policy established by the Department of Justice and the War Department in November 1941, a person "under alien enemy proceedings" was not to be interned until he had been given a hearing. The policy required that the suspect alien would be arrested by a Federal Bureau of Investigation field office—which sent a report of the arrest to both the Alien Enemy Control Office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the corresponding office of the Provost Marshal General—taken to an Immigration and Naturalization Service facility, and detained there temporarily pending a hearing by a local board which would then make its recommendation.

The hearing boards consisted of three civilians from the locality where the arrested person lived. The board was charged with reading or hearing evidence presented to it by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, listening to evidence presented by the apprehended alien, questioning him or her, and making one of three recommendations to the Attorney General: immediate release, release on parole, or internment. In the first six months of the war, approximately one-half of the Italian aliens arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation were either released or paroled while half were interned. As the war continued, the ranks of those interned were swelled by longshoremen, waiters, drifters, fishermen, and farmworkers. Some may have violated immigration or registration laws, while others may have been the target of a neighbor's suspicion.

Illidio DiBugnara spent two months in the hospital shortly after arriving at the McAlester Internment Camp with an ailment he described as some form of stomach trouble. And Prospero Cecconi developed stomach ulcers, first at the internment camp in Missoula, Montana, and then upon his release in San Francisco. As testified to by his daughter, Cecconi considered the requirements of his parole a continuing humiliation, especially because he felt he had done nothing wrong. Eventually, Cecconi did secure his citizenship and was reunited with his wife and children.^{27/}

Members of internee families suffered in varying degrees. Aside from the loss of the family breadwinner and the loss of a father at a critical time in a child's life, some felt the stigma associated with internment directly. Lucetta Berizzi Drypolcher remembers the shock of her father's arrest and the necessity of moving to a smaller apartment. She also remembers being questioned at her father's hearing about her trips to Italy and the reason she spoke French and Italian so well. Lucetta explained that she had had a

French governess at one time and spoke Italian with her parents; both languages were further reinforced in classes at her school. In fact, while her skill in languages represented an advantage in her professional life, it was a handicap during the war years, as she recounts:²⁸/

At the time of my father's internment I had a job at Saks Fifth Avenue. I was a salesperson and worked in different departments at first. I would also be called upon to escort customers who did not speak English, so my languages were useful in helping people to shop; "subversive" I don't think they were. Nonetheless, the FBI showed up at Saks one day and I was called up to the personnel office. The meeting did not take very long, but I was subsequently fired. I guess they found what I was doing suspicious.

Lucetta Berizzi was able to find another job, but the suspicion that attached to an internee, regardless of its basis, often carried over to family and friends.

Concern over the low threshold for inclusion on the Custodial Detention Index was expressed in a memorandum sent to Director Hoover by Attorney General Francis Biddle on July 6, 1943, urging the Federal Bureau of Investigation Director to abolish the Custodial Detention Index:^{29/}

The Department fulfills its proper functions by investigating the activities of persons who may have violated the law. It is not aided in this work by classifying persons as to dangerousness . . . it is now clear to me that this classification system is inherently unreliable. The evidence used for the purpose of making the classifications was inadequate; the standards applied to the evidence for the purpose of making the classifications were defective; and finally, the notion that it is possible to make a valid determination as to how dangerous a person is in the abstract and without reference to time, environment, and other relevant circumstances is impractical, unwise, and dangerous

B. INDIVIDUAL EXCLUSION PROGRAM

From the very first days of America's entry into World War II in December 1941, the Western Defense Command, under Lt. General John DeWitt, planned to remove all Japanese, German, and Italian enemy aliens from what is known as the Pacific Slope—the enormous area that stretches from the Pacific Ocean to the Sierra Nevada mountains. The full plan was tabled when the government decided to remove all persons of Japanese ancestry, including native-born citizens, from California and portions of Arizona, Oregon, and Washington, but it was never abandoned. As stated in its report, "Individual Exclusion Program of Non-Japanese," 11/21

WDC [Western Defense Command] believed that it was going to be necessary to remove all enemy aliens from certain vital sections of the Pacific Coast, regardless of their country of origin. At the time Executive Order 9066 was drawn up early in February 1942, it was still the intent that not only the Japanese but also the German and Italian aliens would have to be excluded.

Within a very short time, Lt. General Hugh Drum of the Eastern Defense Command announced that "mass evacuation [was] not contemplated" and said that evacuations would be conducted on a selective basis for those enemy aliens or persons determined to be "dangerous." To secure the agreement of Lt. General DeWitt and the Western Defense Command, the War Department offered a substitute plan which was agreed to by the Department of Justice: 33/

By April 1942, the CG [Commanding General], WDC [Western Defense Command] had agreed with the War Department not to hold a mass evacuation of the Germans and Italians provided he be granted the power to individually exclude members of these groups or members of any other groups, whether citizen or alien, from the critical area upon finding the individual was potentially dangerous.

The Western Defense Command and the War Department maintained that there were dangerous persons, both aliens and naturalized citizens with roots in Italy and Germany, whose presence in critical zones along the coast constituted an unacceptable risk of sabotage or espionage. Lt. General DeWitt issued Public Proclamation No. 1 on March 2, 1942, which designated as Military Area No. 1 a broad coastal strip of land that encompassed the western portions of California, Oregon, and Washington, and the southern half of Arizona. Soon, all persons of Japanese origin would be removed from that ocean-to-mountain-zone. Eventually, some aliens of Italian origin would also be forced to vacate that zone.

On March 21, 1942, Congress passed, and the President signed, Public Law 77-503 (commonly known as Public Law 503), imposing misdemeanor penalties on anyone violating the military orders to be issued. The bill affected American citizens, the first native-born Japanese-Americans, and later those naturalized citizens of Italian and German descent who were individually excluded. During consideration of the bill, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio questioned its peacetime constitutionality: 35/

I have no doubt that in peacetime no man could ever be convicted under it, because the court would find that it was so indefinite and so uncertain that it could not be enforced under the Constitution.

Nevertheless, Senator Taft supported the bill, and President Roosevelt signed it into law. The program for exclusion was now in place. The Army would issue proclamations of exclusion (or evacuation) from areas it declared "sensitive," and the Justice Department would enforce those proclamations through the courts.

Assistant Secretary of War John McCloy clarified the purposes of the exclusion program and indicated that individuals were to be excluded primarily for one of two reasons: Individuals were to be excluded either because of suspicion of the individual, which would also prohibit him from entering other military areas, or because of the sensitivity of the area where he resided, which would not prohibit him from entering other military areas. 36/

The exclusions began on or about September 1, 1942. The procedures under the program, as outlined by the Western Defense Command in its report, began when the intelligence division of the military command, in this case the Western Defense Command, consulted the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Office of Naval Intelligence to determine who should be recommended for exclusion. A summary of the intelligence information available would then be provided to the Individual Exclusion Board. This hearing board was made up of three military officers of field grade, and they would set the case for a hearing. The individual was served with a notice by mail that provided the time and place of the hearing. The hearings were typically held in major cities, such as Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. At the hearings, subjects were asked to fill out a lengthy questionnaire, they were sworn in, and they were instructed as to their rights. Each subject (and his attorney if he had one) "was informed in general of the evidence being considered in his case." Moreover, "[a]|I confidential sources were, of course, not disclosed nor were the names of informants or informers given to the subject." Subjects were then questioned about matters known to the board from the intelligence reports. After the hearing, the board made its recommendation to exclude or not to exclude, sent it for approval to the Civil Affairs Division (CAD) for review, and then contacted the United States Attorneys in the subjects' areas of residence for their recommendations.

The entire file, with recommendations, was sent to the Commanding General of the Defense Command for his final decision. If the Commanding General decided to exclude the individual, the person was "served with notice in the form of an exclusion order and notified where to appear for the necessary processing." This processing included being photographed and fingerprinted so that these documents could be sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The excludee was then advised "on matters relating to his property and his transportation from the exclusion area," and given help, if he needed it, to remove himself by the target date. He was then "placed under surveillance until his departure from the exclusion area." 38/

The Western Defense Command's Supplementary Report stated that the subjects and their attorneys were informed, in general, of the evidence being considered. Although the Western Defense Command report appears to indicate that excludees were allowed legal representation, the form letter notifying persons of the hearing stated: "You may be accompanied by counsel to act only as your personal advisor. He will not be heard by the Board nor be permitted to examine witnesses." 39/

In Nino Guttadauro's case, such restrictions left him on his own before the military hearing board, which convened, according to his son Angelo's account, "in Room 483 of San Francisco's Whitcomb Hotel at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, 8 September 1942." With Federal Bureau of Investigation accounts of his activities in San Francisco as evidence against him—Guttadauro was an accountant who worked often for the Italian consulate, and was also, as a World War I veteran, the president of the San Francisco branch of the Federation of Italian World War Veterans, or Ex-Combattenti—Guttadauro was unable to provide the board with enough "mitigating factors" to counter the charge that his presence in California constituted a danger to public safety. At 10:18 a.m. on September 29, 1942, he was served with Individual Exclusion Order F-1, demanding that he remove himself not just from Military Area No. 1, but from several other military areas as well, including some twenty-nine states from Connecticut to North Carolina, from Vermont to Virginia, and parts of Alabama, New Mexico, Mississippi, and Texas. Guttadauro was ordered to report two days later to Major Ray Ashworth for processing and to inform the Western Defense Command "in writing the time of your departure, initial and ultimate destinations, route to be followed, and means of travel; upon arrival at ultimate destination, you will report in person the fact of your arrival and your address at such destination to the Special Agent in Charge of the nearest office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice." These notification and reporting requirements remained in effect whenever Guttadauro traveled outside of his community or changed his place of residence.

Guttadauro's travel and changes of residence would be frequent in the next two years. Like many other excludees from San Francisco, Guttadauro traveled first to Reno, Nevada, which was the nearest large city out of the excluded zone. According to his son's account, Guttadauro found it impossible to find work in his field of accounting because he had to let potential employers know of his exclusion. As a result, "the first job he was able to find following the exclusion was as a grocery clerk in Salt Lake City, Utah. This economic disruption and hardship, as well as the psychological scars, remained with my father for the rest of his life." Guttadauro's wife and two children followed him to Reno and beyond, renting housing at high costs because of their transient status. As his son Angelo put it, "We had become, by military fiat, a family of involuntary gypsies." Nino Guttadauro's exclusion lasted until March 13, 1944, at which time he received a letter from the Western Defense Command rescinding the original exclusion order.

According to its Supplementary Report, the Western Defense Command heard some 335 exclusion cases between September 1942 and April 1943. These resulted in the exclusion of 174 persons, of which some two dozen were of Italian descent, most from northern California, with a few cases from Los Angeles and San Diego. Nationwide, according to a Preliminary Report on Individual Exclusion prepared for Attorney General Biddle by Director Edward Ennis of the Alien Enemy Control Unit, there were, as of August 7, 1943, some 263 exclusion orders issued by the Commanding Generals of the Eastern, Western, and Southern Military Commands. With some 154 additional cases pending, this brought the total number of exclusion cases reviewed or in process to 417. 45/

As noted above, some two dozen persons of Italian ancestry were ordered to remove themselves by order of the Commanding General, Western Defense Command. Most went to Reno, where a small community of excludees gathered. Among them was Ettore Patrizi, the former publisher of San Francisco's Italian newspaper. A major figure in San Francisco's Italian community for nearly fifty years, and a United States citizen for thirty of those years, Patrizi was seventy-six-years old and in the Dante Hospital when he received his exclusion order dated September 28, 1942. Since many notable citizens tried to intercede for him on grounds of age and illness, the Army conceded him ten additional days but insisted he leave within this time period or within twenty-four hours of his discharge from the hospital. Because of failing health he was allowed to return to San Francisco in October 1943, but he died within a year.

Renzo Turco also complied without protest to his exclusion order by closing his law office and, with his wife, moving to Chicago. Like Guttadauro, he had difficulty finding employment—again, because the requirement to report weekly to the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a "potentially dangerous" person made it difficult to convince employers of one's trustworthiness—until, through friends, he was able to land a job as an auditor for the Internal Revenue Service. In November 1943, he tried, through Senator Hiram Johnson, to have his exclusion order modified so that he could work in Washington, D.C.; his request was denied and the exclusion order continued.^{48/}

The case of Sylvester Andriano is notable because of the special attention he received. Andriano was a prominent San Francisco lawyer, having served as the head of a draft board, as an elected member of the board of supervisors, and as an appointed Figures compiled by other researchers vary, but generally agree with those above. Personal Justice Denied concluded that relatively few people suffered individual exclusions and noted that between August 1942 and July 1943, 174 people had been excluded in the Western Defense Command, 59 in the Eastern Defense Command, and 21 in the Southern Defense Command. Personal Justice Denied, supra note 8, at 288. These figures indicate that the Western Defense Command excluded by far the largest number, both as a total, and as a percentage of its alien population.

member of the police commission. He was also active in the Italian-American community, serving as director of the Italian-language school in North Beach, and as a board member of the Italian Chamber of Commerce. The latter positions brought him to the attention of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and later the Western Defense Command, and he was ordered excluded from Military Area No. 1 on September 28, 1942. He moved to Chicago and found work there. However, in March 1943, Andriano ignored his exclusion order with a trip back into Military Area No. 1 to see his ailing mother. This set off a singular conflict between the Western Defense Command and Attorney General Francis Biddle, which brought the entire Individual Exclusion Program into question and reignited the longstanding conflict between the two departments responsible for civilian control—the Justice and War Departments:

Early in 1943, the Attorney General, Mr. Biddle, began to show signs of an unwillingness to prosecute for violations of the orders. He took the attitude that he alone was the one to judge whether or not a violation should be prosecuted, and further, went so far as to state that he considered the procedure unconstitutional and, as such, refused to test the matter in the courts.

From the beginning, the Attorney General had expressed grave doubts about both the necessity and the legality of the exclusion program demanded by the military. Therefore, he refused, as Lt. General DeWitt had charged in the Andriano case, to prosecute certain cases of violators. In a memo to President Roosevelt on April 17, 1943, the Attorney General made his deep reservations about the entire program clear: 50/2

We have not approved the Army procedure, which does not permit the persons excluded — American citizens — to confront witnesses before the Military Tribunal. This is against a fundamental conception of constitutional rights. Prosecution would have little practical effect. Bail would be granted and the individuals would go on living where they chose until the cases were ultimately decided by the Supreme Court. If the Army believes that they are dangerous they have the express power to exclude them under the Executive Order.

In August 1943, Director Edward Ennis, Alien Enemy Control Unit, sent the Preliminary Report on Exclusion to the Attorney General to evaluate the exclusion program and determine its effectiveness in internal security and the removal of persons thought to be dangerous in particular areas. ^{51/} Findings similar to those presented in the Preliminary Report appeared in the September 1943 Supplemental Report on the Exclusion Program, which reviewed 100 cases where orders were issued: There was no positive correlation between the exclusions and the concentration of essential defense facilities; there was no correlation between the exclusions per state and the enemy-alien population of that state; and the determination that a person presented a significant security problem was conducted in an unsatisfactory manner. ^{52/}

C. CURFEW, CONTRABAND, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION RAIDS ON HOMES, AND OTHER RESTRICTIONS

1. Introduction

During the war, thousands of Italian, Japanese, and German aliens were subjected to restrictions based on their ancestry and were affected by, but not necessarily arrested for, violations of wartime restrictions. This section will discuss the various types of restrictions imposed on persons of Italian ancestry, whether or not they were arrested, and will also address the pertinent laws, orders, regulations, and proclamations related to the treatment of enemy aliens during World War II. Additionally, as required by Section 3, Subsection 12 of the Act, this section will provide an explanation as to why some persons of Italian ancestry were subjected to restrictions and others were not.

2. LEGAL AUTHORITIES

a. Executive Order 9066

On February 19, 1942, ten weeks after the attack on Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt signed Executive Order 9066, giving the Secretary of War and military commanders to whom he delegated authority the power to exclude any and all persons—both citizens and aliens—from designated "military areas" to ensure security against sabotage and espionage. The Executive Order authorized the Secretary of War to take any other steps deemed appropriate to enforce compliance with the restrictions applicable to each military area, including the use of federal troops and other federal

In September 1943, a supplemental report was issued which noted that a final report was to be issued to review the last 163 cases. See Alien Enemy Control Unit, Supplement to Preliminary Report on Study of Individual Exclusion Order Cases. Sept. 1943, at 19. [hereinafter Supplement]. Despite extensive research, the Department of Justice was unable to locate the final report and relies for this portion of the report on the preliminary and supplemental reports which reviewed less than half of the cases where exclusion orders were issued.

b. Alien Enemy Act and Presidential Proclamations 2525, 2526, and 2527

Immediately following the outbreak of war, but prior to the issuance of Executive Order 9066, several other laws and proclamations imposed restrictions upon Italian aliens. One of the most prominent, the Alien Enemy Act of 1798, granted the President of the United States broad powers to deal with enemy aliens during wartime. ^{55/} Under this Act, as amended, the president can limit the activities of enemy aliens by imposing travel and curfew restrictions and also deprive aliens from access to and the possession of firearms, cameras, and radios. ^{56/}

On December 7, 1941, after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt implemented the Alien Enemy Act. On the same day, under the authority of that Act, President Roosevelt issued Presidential Proclamation 2525 levying restrictions and regulations against Japanese aliens and unnaturalized persons of Japanese birth who were classified as enemy aliens. The proclamation designated the Attorney General and the Secretary of War to regulate the conduct of enemy aliens; to set out regulations prohibiting enemy aliens from specific areas; and to prohibit alien enemies from possessing or controlling numerous items, including firearms, bombs, ammunition, short-wave radio receiving sets, and cameras. It additionally set forth thirteen paragraphs of restrictions related to Japanese aliens.

On December 8, 1941, President Roosevelt issued similar proclamations regulating conduct of German and Italian aliens—Proclamations 2526 and 2527, respectively—out of concern for an invasion or predatory incursion threatened upon the United States by Germany and Italy. Proclamation 2526 designated German citizens, denizens, natives, and subjects who were 14 years of age and older as enemy aliens and authorized the Attorney General and Secretary of War to regulate the conduct of these individuals. It also incorporated by reference all the restrictions listed in Proclamation 2525. Proclamation 2527 was identical to Proclamation 2526 except that it applied to natives, citizens, subjects, and denizens of Italy.

On January 14, 1942, President Roosevelt issued supplemental restrictions to those imposed on alien enemies under Proclamations 2525, 2526, and 2527. The new restrictions required all enemy aliens to apply for, to acquire, and to carry at all times, certificates of identification.

c. Department of Justice Regulations and Restrictions

On February 5, 1942, the Department of Justice issued regulations on travel and other conduct of enemy aliens. Enemy aliens were allowed to travel within the limits of the community in which they lived or in which they worked, between their residences and places of work, between their residences and places of worship, and between their residences and government agencies. However, the aliens were required to file travel documents indicating their names, addresses, intended destinations and purpose of trips, mode of transportation, and intended return dates. These statements were filed with the local United States Attorney who would maintain a copy and also forward a copy to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Under these regulations, enemy aliens were also prohibited from possessing or having access to specified property. The most frequent items confiscated were radio transmitters, short-wave radio sets, cameras, and firearms. The regulations required the immediate deposit of prohibited articles with local police who would transfer the articles to the United States Marshals. Although many Sections 4 and 5 -- Set out restrictions on the ability of aliens of enemy nationalities to travel within the country.

Section 6 -- Prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from arranging or attending any flight of any nature in an airplane or other aircraft.

Section 7 -- Restricted aliens of enemy nationalities from changing their residence, employment, or name subject to giving notice to the United States Attorney seven days in advance with an explanation as to the reasons for the change. In the case of a change of name, immediate notice had to be given to the Alien Registration Division of Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Federal Bureau of aliens of Italian ancestry had American-born children who served on active military duty during the war, they were nevertheless subject to these restrictions. Later, aliens whose children served in the military were exempted from many of the restrictions.

These regulations also excluded aliens from subsequently-designated areas. On February 14, 1942, they were amended to specify areas from which aliens were to be excluded, including sixty-eight areas in California, twenty-four areas in Oregon, and seven areas in Washington. 62/

d. Department of Justice Press Releases

In addition, the Attorney General issued a succession of press releases during World War II that announced the designation of areas in the western United States as Investigation immediately after the change took place.

Section 8 -- Prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from using, operating, possessing, or having in their custody or control at any time or place any radio transmitter.

Section 9 -- Prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from using, operating, or possessing any short-wave radio receiving set, except by permission of the United States Attorney.

Section 10 -- Prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from using, operating, or possessing any cameras, with exceptions. This section permitted aliens to retain studio cameras with permission by local authorities. The United States Attorney could authorize aliens to retain cameras where use of a camera was necessary for the regular and customary mode of earning a living and where it appeared that the grant of permission would not be detrimental to national security.

Section 11 -- Prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from using or possessing firearms. Under extraordinary and exceptional circumstances, the United States Attorney could grant permission for aliens to use or possess firearms.

Section 12 -- Aliens of enemy nationalities had a duty to deposit all short-wave receiving sets, cameras, firearms, and any other prohibited articles with the local police authorities in the communities where they resided.

Section 13 -- Local authorities were directed to take custody of such prohibited articles and notify the United States Marshal in their respective districts in writing that they had accepted custody of the prohibited articles. Upon receipt of such notification, the United States Marshal was directed to take possession and inventory the items.

Section 14 -- Sets out the process for the United States Attorney to authorize release of deposited articles.

Section 15 -- Prohibited and Restricted Areas: Prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from residing, entering, remaining, or being found in any area designated as "prohibited" by the Attorney General of the United States. This provision also prohibited aliens of enemy nationalities from entering restricted areas with the exception that permits could be issued to such aliens under prescribed conditions.

Section 16 -- Violation of Regulations: Aliens of enemy nationalities who failed to comply with these regulations were subject to apprehension, detention, and internment for the duration of the war. These same penalties applied to aliens of enemy nationalities who aided, abetted, counseled, commanded, induced, or procured another alien of enemy nationality to violate the regulations. Any prohibited articles possessed by aliens of enemy nationalities were subject to summary seizure and forfeiture.

prohibited zones and exclusion areas. The following summarizes the major announcements of exclusion and restrictions affecting aliens of Italian, German, and Japanese ancestry and Japanese-American citizens.

- On January 29, 1942, the Attorney General announced the designation of areas of the West Coast as prohibited areas from which all German, Italian, and Japanese enemy aliens were excluded. Prohibited Area No. 19 included parts of the San Francisco waterfront. Prohibited Area No. 33 included parts of Los Angeles. Enemy aliens were to evacuate these areas by February 24, 1942. The Attorney General stated that the exclusion of enemy aliens from these areas would aid national defense and protect the aliens themselves. 63/
- On January 31, 1942, the Attorney General announced sixty-nine additional areas in California from which all enemy aliens were to be excluded on and after February 15, 1942.^{64/}
- On February 2, 1942, the Attorney General announced fifteen additional areas in California from which all enemy aliens were to be excluded on or after February 24, 1942. 65/
- On February 4, 1942, the Attorney General announced that seven areas in Washington and twenty-four areas in Oregon were declared prohibited to Japanese, German, and Italian aliens. Under the new regulations, no alien could be found within these designated areas on and after February 15, 1942.

The Attorney General's announcements were based on recommendations made by the War Department. There were already eighty-six areas in California declared prohibited to German, Italian, and Japanese aliens, and in twelve others curfew restrictions had been imposed.

 On February 4, 1942, the Attorney General also announced that the entire coastline of California from the Oregon border south to a point approximately fifty miles north of Los Angeles and extending inland for distances varying from thirty to one hundred and fifty miles, had been declared a "restricted area" for all enemy aliens. Eleven other areas immediately surrounding certain hydroelectric generating plants throughout the State had been designated as restricted areas. He also announced new restrictions that became effective February 24, 1942, which required all Japanese, German, and Italian aliens living in the restricted areas (1) to be in their place of residence between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m.; (2) to be, at all other times during the day, only at their place of residence or employment as indicated on their certificates of identification, or to be going between those two places or within a distance of not more than five miles from their place of residence; and (3) if found in any other place than that indicated above, to be subject to apprehension and internment.^{67/}

United States Attorneys could authorize exceptions to these restrictions for a compelling reason and after completing an investigation. This regulation also distinguished between "restricted" areas and "prohibited" areas. Enemy aliens were barred from prohibited areas. They could remain in restricted areas but had to observe curfews and other specific restrictions.

 On February 7, 1942, the Attorney General designated eighteen prohibited areas in the State of Arizona from which all aliens of German, Italian, and Japanese nationality were excluded after February 24, 1942.^{68/}

e. Military Proclamations

Lt. General DeWitt as Commanding General of the Western Defense Command, which encompassed Washington, Oregon, California, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and Alaska, issued Public Proclamation No. 1 on March 2, 1942 under the authority of Executive Order 9066, which established Military Areas Nos. 1 and 2.^{69/} Public Proclamation No. 1 designated ninety-nine zones in Military Area No. 1 and noted that individuals may be excluded from those zones in the future. It further required all Japanese, German, and Italian aliens, and any Japanese-American citizen who resided in Military Area No. 1, to file forms with the post office when they changed their address. It also expressly continued the prohibited and restricted areas previously designated by the Attorney General. Public Proclamation No. 3, issued on March 24, 1942, established a curfew requiring all enemy aliens and persons of Japanese ancestry living in any of these areas to be in their homes between 8:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. This restriction was similar to the curfew regulations established by the Attorney General. During the spring of 1942, numerous public proclamations were announced by the United States Army setting out the specific terms for excluding and restricting enemy aliens from parts of the western United States.

Subsequently, the Western Defense Command issued rules regarding temporary exemptions from the travel and curfew provisions of Public Proclamation No. 3 in Public Proclamation No. $11.\frac{71}{2}$ These rules authorized the issuance of permits for certain temporary exemptions from travel and curfew restrictions under Public Proclamation No. 3.

f. Trading with the Enemy Act

Under the Trading with the Enemy Act, enacted in 1917, the President was given broad discretion to impose trade embargoes and other economic restrictions in times of war or peacetime emergencies. Congress authorized the President to prohibit certain transactions with designated countries in an effort to advance foreign policy goals. [72]

To Public Proclamation No. 2, issued on March 16, 1942 by Lt. General DeWitt, Commanding General of the Western Defense Command, designated additional Military Areas Nos. 3, 4, 5, and 6, in Idaho, Montana, Nevada, and Utah, respectively, and described zones in those states. It also required all Italian, German, Japanese aliens, and people of Japanese ancestry to file a "Change of Residence Notice" at the post office between one and five days before the change of residence.

Public Proclamation No. 11, Western Defense Command, Aug. 18, 1942. Additionally, Public Proclamation No. 5 exempted classes of individuals from the exclusion and evacuation program. These classes included Italian aliens over the age of 70, and Italian parents, spouses, or children of officers, enlisted men, or commissioned nurses on active duty in the military services or who died in the line of duty since December 7, 1941. Public Proclamation No. 5, Western Defense Command, March 30, 1942. This exemption came too late for one family. An interview with the children of Mrs. Teresa Sabatini revealed that their mother, as an alien, was required to evacuate from Alameda, California because she was too close to the naval shipyard. After moving several blocks away, she was again required to move further from the shipyard. Thus, the entire family moved to East Oakland, California even though her son, Remo, was on active duty with the United States Army. Interview with Remo Sabatini and Mary Sabatini Kearney, April 7, 2001.

The Act has been traditionally used as an economic self-defense weapon. Section 5(b) of the Act authorizes the President to issue regulations during a period of war to prohibit "transactions involving any property in which any foreign country or a national thereof has any interest, by any person, or with respect to any property, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States." The main objectives of the Act are to prevent the enemy from using any property it owns or controls in the United States, to make that property available for use by the United States, and to weaken enemy countries by depriving their supporters of the ability to aid them through trading.

g. Applicable Laws Ending the Wartime Restrictions

In recognition of the fact that Italian immigrants and citizens were loyal to the United States, the enemy-alien restrictions were lifted for those of Italian ancestry in less than a year. The Attorney General made the announcement in New York City on October 12. 1942.^{73/}

Public Proclamation 24 was issued on September 4, 1945. With Japan's surrender, the proclamation removed the restrictions imposed within designated areas of the Western Defense Command. The proclamation rescinded all individual exclusion orders, public proclamations, and civilian restrictive orders entered during the period of war.^{74/}

Additionally, on December 7, 1945, President Harry S. Truman signed Presidential Proclamation 2674, which revoked specific regulations related to the possession of certain prohibited articles and travel by enemy aliens under Presidential Proclamations 2525, 2526, and 2527. 75/

3. FEDERAL RESTRICTIONS

a. Arrests and Curfew Restrictions

The curfew restrictions under Proclamation 2527 and Justice regulations disrupted lives and affected livelihoods. Italian railroad employees, for example, were temporarily removed from their positions because of the curfew and travel restrictions while others were transferred to positions in different areas that were not subject to these restrictions.

A review of thousands of pages of documents revealed 354 arrests for curfew violations, over 85 percent of which occurred in California. Many of these records reflected that the person found violating the curfew was given a warning and then allowed to return home, or was directed to make a subsequent appointment at the police station or at a United States Attorney's Office to be questioned.^{76/}

b. Searches and Contraband Confiscations

Enemy aliens were not allowed to possess contraband items, including firearms or weapons of war, short-wave radio receiving and sending sets, cameras, or other items that were essentially instruments of possible espionage and/or sabotage. The confiscation of such contraband officially began with the issuance of Proclamation 2527 after the war broke out, but the War Department believed the Justice Department's implementation was moving at too slow a pace, including the area of search and seizure.

Under pressure from the Army, the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation developed procedures for raiding enemy-alien homes. The Attorney General was firm from the beginning that search warrants were to be issued only when probable cause was found. The Army, specifically the Western Defense Command under Lt. General DeWitt, maintained that being an enemy alien during a time of war constituted probable cause. Initially, Attorney General Biddle rejected the argument as a whole, but the Justice Department and the Western Defense Command reached a compromise in January 1942 whereby, "All enemy aliens were to deposit prohibited articles with the local police within a few days, and merely being an enemy alien would be sufficient cause for a search."

Search warrants were issued allowing Federal Bureau of Investigation agents to search the homes and residences of aliens for possession of contraband items. United States Attorneys also had the authority to issue "Executive Search Warrants" allowing Federal Bureau of Investigation special agents to search the premises of enemy aliens believed to possess prohibited articles. During the first week of the war, the Federal Bureau of Investigation applied directly to the Department of Justice for warrants. After the first week, the system changed such that the Federal Bureau of Investigation submitted evidence to the United States Attorney of the district in which the suspected enemy alien lived or was present. If the United States Attorney thought the evidence warranted a search for contraband, he or she would apply to the Alien Enemy Control Unit for the warrant. In addition, United States Attorneys were authorized to issue special "Presidential Warrants" for the apprehension of enemy aliens believed to possess such items. In most cases, enemy aliens found possessing prohibited articles were apprehended, questioned, and released because the violations did not present a danger to national security. Occasionally, the alien appeared before an Alien Enemy Hearing Board. 79/

Records indicate spot searches were conducted in almost 2,900 Italian homes across the nation. As a result, 1,632 individuals had contraband confiscated. Roughly two-thirds of these searches were conducted in just four states: New York and Pennsylvania on the East Coast, California on the West Coast, and Louisiana along the Gulf of Mexico. In these four states, 1,907 searches of Italian-American homes were conducted, resulting in 1,077 instances of contraband confiscation. The coastal locations of New York Harbor, San Francisco Bay, and New Orleans were apparently determining factors in the concentration of raids. Nationwide, the confiscation rate averaged 56%, although Massachusetts and Louisiana had higher rates. A majority of searches were conducted on the East Coast.

c. Other Restrictions

Earlier in this report, the detention and internment of Italians were discussed at length. Enemy aliens who were determined dangerous to the public safety were made subject to summary apprehension by an authorized officer of the Department of Justice. Enemy aliens were also restricted from entering areas surrounding forts, camps, arsenals, airports, electric or power plants, docks, piers, railroad terminal, depots, yards, and other storage facilities. 83/

Furthermore, aliens were unable to change residences or jobs without complying with regulations of the Attorney General and filing the required change of address notice or change of employment form. They were required to carry certificates of identification at all times. In a small number of instances, individuals were questioned about infractions and were required to correct them within a specified period of time. Records revealed 442 violations, including failures to file a change of residence card, failures to obtain a travel permit, and failures to obtain a certificate of identity. Almost 500 persons

4. EXECUTIVE ORDER 9066 AND ITALIAN AMERICANS

On February 19, 1942, President Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066, authorizing military areas from which persons could be excluded:85/

[b]y virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, and Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, I hereby authorize and direct the secretary of war, and the military commanders whom he may from time to time designate, whenever he or any designated commander deems such actions necessary or desirable, to prescribe military areas in such places and of such extent as he or the appropriate military commanders may determine, from which any or all persons may be excluded, and with such respect to which, the right of any person to enter, remain in, or leave shall be subject to whatever restrictions the secretary of war or the appropriate military commander may impose in his discretion

Lt. General DeWitt, Commander of the Western Defense Command, imposed stricter restrictions on Italian enemy aliens in his area on the West Coast than did the commanders of the Eastern or Southern Defense Commands, ostensibly because of its proximity to Pearl Harbor and a general fear that the Japanese Navy might attack the continental United States. As discussed in greater detail above, Lt. General DeWitt issued numerous proclamations for the West Coast which established prohibited and restricted military areas, required persons to be excluded from defined areas, and imposed curfew and travel restrictions and other requirements.

Although Italian enemy aliens generally observed the orders excluding them from prohibited zones, several cases of curfew violations were reported. At least ten persons of Italian ancestry were arrested in Los Angeles for curfew violations in June 1942, while over three-hundred persons were arrested for curfew violations in California throughout the war.

As a result of the Western Defense Command's evacuation, travel, and curfew orders, Executive Order 9066 affected Italian enemy aliens on the West Coast disproportionately. It also led to the development of plans for the further evacuation of the forty-thousand Italian enemy aliens who had not been forced to move—those who lived in Military Area No. 1 but whose homes and businesses lay outside the narrower prohibited zones along the coast. The Western Defense Command initially intended to remove some or all of these enemy aliens as soon as its program for removal of all persons of Japanese ancestry was completed. These plans, however, for mass evacuation of German and Italian enemy aliens nationwide were resisted at several levels of government, notably in the Justice Department and the House Select Committee Investigating National Defense Migration (commonly known as the Tolan Committee), and were subsequently dropped. Thus, the only mass temporary evacuation of Italian enemy aliens—the one imposed in mid-February by the Justice Department and reinforced by Lt. General DeWitt's Proclamation No. 1 in March—was the one that had already occurred on the West Coast.

In its place, the War Department initiated an individual exclusion plan to be applied to persons of Italian and German descent. This plan provided for investigations of individuals, aliens, and naturalized citizens who were alleged to be "possibly dangerous." Some had been placed on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Custodial Detention Index but had avoided internment because their citizenship excluded them from the enemy alien control laws. Under Executive Order 9066, however, they could be apprehended, and if found suspect, could be ordered out of the requisite military areas. Although this plan was also imposed in the Eastern and Southern Defense Commands, its application in the Western Defense Command was more extensive. Whereas some 59 persons were excluded from the Eastern Defense Command, and some 21 from the Southern Defense Command, approximately 174 were excluded from the Western Defense Command under Lt. General DeWitt. 90/

Some persons of Italian descent were subject to evacuation or exclusion orders while many thousands were not, because, with regard to evacuation, the orders affected only those whose homes or businesses were located in the West Coast prohibited zones. Strict lines were drawn—for example Highway 101 along the California coast, west of which was a prohibited zone—with those on one side of the highway forced to

Actually, such a mass evacuation order would have affected all 52,000 Italian enemy aliens because those who had moved earlier had moved only far enough to vacate coastal zones; they were still in Military Area No. 1, and so would have been forced to move if that whole area had been declared off limits.

move, while those on the other side allowed to stay. Non-citizens who lived in such towns as Pittsburg on the Sacramento delta likewise had to move, while those a few miles or even blocks away could remain. 91/

D. WARTIME IMPACT ON FISHERMEN OF ITALIAN ANCESTRY

1. BACKGROUND

With the waves of Italian immigrants came fishermen, often from small coastal villages in Sicily. They formed communities along the East, West, and Gulf coasts, where they fished for tuna, sardines, mackerel, and crab, and contributed to the growth of an industry. Often speaking little English and unable to read or write, many avoided naturalization out of fear or embarrassment. Their failure to obtain citizenship prior to the war was to become, for some, a substantial regret.

As fishermen, they suffered restrictions on where and when they could fish; as enemy aliens, they were prohibited from wharfs, piers, and the fishing vessels themselves. $\frac{92}{}$ They were subject to the loss of their boats for the duration of the war through lease (such as a "bareboat charter") or purchase. The effect on their livelihood was striking, and the impact on the fishing industry was equally profound. $\frac{93}{}$

2. REQUISITION OF VESSELS

Merchant ships, including fishing vessels, were routinely licensed and inspected. At the same time, and throughout the war years, vessels were boarded by Coast Guard or Navy personnel, either at sea or in port, for inspection and for the purpose of sealing radio transmitters. Operating out of northern California, the American Rose, the ^{91/2} See supra Part II.C.2.e. In defining the boundaries of military areas, the proclamations commonly used streets, roads, and highways as identifiable landmarks. Proclamation No. 1 stated that buildings, structures, and other premises situated opposite the military areas and bounded by such streets, roads or highways were not to be included within the military areas. However, those buildings, structures or other premises within the military areas and bounded by such streets, roads, and highways were expressly included within the military areas. Public Proclamation No. 1, Western Defense Command, Mar. 2, 1942. Thus, one side of the highway would be within the prohibited zone and persons in that area were subject to various restrictions, while persons residing on the opposite side of the road were in a so-called "free" area and were not subject to the restrictions.

^{92/} See Appendix H, a list of fishermen prevented from fishing in prohibited zones.

Marettimo, the Anna B, and the Alma were four such fishing ships owned and crewed by citizens or aliens of Italian descent. 94/

In the late 1930s, the United States Coast Guard inspected and evaluated fishing vessels and other water-craft to determine their potential fitness for requisition to assist in coastal defense. As of January 1941, however, in a memorandum to the 12th Naval District, the Chief of Naval Operations stated that the intention of the Navy Department was to build new minesweepers rather than convert fishing vessels, while continuing to identify boats for possible acquisition in the event of a national emergency. A week later, the Commandant of the 12th Naval District wrote that his office reviewed a draft charter lease agreement with leaders of the fishing industry who raised no objections to the form. The Commandant anticipated no problem in securing the required number of agreements to charter.

By authority of the Presidential Proclamation of May 27, 1941, which declared an Unlimited National Emergency, and Section 902 of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936, which authorized the requisition of vessels during national emergencies declared by presidential proclamation, the Maritime Commission of the United States was authorized to prepare and to issue a Declaration of Requisition. Section 902 provided fair compensation to owners for the use of their vessels, mandating that ^{95/} In March 1941, for example, at least thirty-four fishing vessels in the San Francisco area owned by Italian-Americans or aliens of Italian descent were evaluated to determine suitability, whether the owner was willing to sell or charter, and whether the asking price was considered reasonable or excessive. In a June 1941 memorandum from the 12th Naval District, twelve of these purse seiners were recommended for acquisition: the California Bear, the Aurora, the Santa Rosa, the Twin Brothers, the Pacific Star, the New Hope, the Lina V, the Cutino Brothers, the San Jose, the Belle Haven, the St. James, and the San Giovanni. [i]n the case of a vessel taken and used, but not purchased, the vessel shall be restored to the owner in a condition at least as good as when taken, less reasonable wear and tear, or the owner shall be paid an amount for reconditioning sufficient to place the vessel in such condition.

As the effort to purchase vessels continued, an additional program involved the induction of a voluntary fleet of fishermen, tugmen, and yachtsmen within the 12th Naval District, including San Francisco, Monterey, and Eureka, into the Merchant Marine Naval Reserve. A July 24, 1941 press release of the 12th Naval District stated 101/1

[t]heir job will be to patrol the same waters they've plied as fishermen and yachtsmen — but they won't be fishing, and they won't be cruising for fun. They'll be stalking bigger game — enemy periscopes, small boats attempting landings, stray enemy aircraft bent on reconnaissance. They'll be sweeping for mines — looking for any kind of trouble that may crop up.

To the Navy, the most seaworthy boats were the most desirable, and fishing trawlers and purse seiners were ideally suited for coastal and harbor patrol as well as minesweeping operations. Along the West Coast—particularly San Francisco, Santa Cruz, and Monterey—and in port cities in the east from the Florida Keys to Portland, Maine, fishing fleets constituted a large and vital industry, often dominated by citizens and aliens of Italian descent.

Through negotiations and formal contracts, fishing boats were taken over by the War Shipping Administration for use by the United States Coast Guard and the United States Navy. Some were purchased outright and often sold back to the original owners at the end of the war or when the vessels were no longer needed. Others were chartered for a prescribed period of time. In determining bareboat charter rates, a

^{102/} Contrary to some accounts, fishing vessels, in fact, were not seized or impounded, except as a consequence of repeated violations of restricted areas. number of principal factors came into play. The Commandant of the 12th Naval District wrote that: 104/

[i]n war time, requisitioning is believed to be a more efficient and fairer method of securing the tonnage the Government needs. All ships and owners have the substantial equality of treatment. The Government names the rates and conditions and there is no haggling or negotiation. If an owner is dissatisfied with the terms or rates he can accept part of the compensation and have the balance adjudicated in the Court of Claims It is a cleancut, well-understood procedure, which was used successfully in World War I.

In September 1941, the Joint Merchant Vessel Board identified 287 vessels, nearly all commercial fishing trawlers, draggers, or purse seiners, for conversion to wartime use. On December 12, 1941, the 12th Naval District called for the immediate requisition of 15 fishing vessels in San Francisco and Monterey. All such vessels were

A memorandum from the 12th Naval District the same month indicated that the average asking price by owner for purse seiners ranged from $46,000 to $65,000 for purchase, $1,244 to $1,500 for charter, the range based on the length of the vessel, its age, and cost plus improvements. ⁽a) Two purse seiners similar in every respect are of equal Naval value for conversion and operation as mine sweepers.

⁽b) Characteristics of the vessel.

⁽c) General condition of the vessel and of machinery.

⁽e) Reputation of the owner as to his earning ability. This is believed to be of more value than any information obtained from the cannery account ledger in which entries are often obscure.

⁽f) Lacking an Emergency, the offered charter rate must, in general, be accepted as the lowest rate for which the owner desires to charter his vessel. The canneries have interests in practically all the fishing vessels upon which they depend for their raw materials, and if these vessels are chartered, the charter rate must be sufficient to compensate for the loss of the vessel to the canning industry.

owned by citizens or aliens of Italian descent. By December 26,1941, these vessels had been delivered to the United States Navy by the Maritime Commission. 107/

At the conclusion of the war, or at a time when they were no longer needed, fishing vessels were returned to their owners. In many cases, the condition of the vessel was poor upon its return. Negotiations and appeals would attempt to resolve disagreements over compensation for damaged or missing equipment.

3. RESTRICTIONS PLACED ON FISHERMEN

In a May 1942 memorandum from the Commandant of the Coast Guard to District Coast Guard Officers and Captains of the Port, the Commandant stated that to receive a license to depart local waters, the master or operator of the vessel must be a citizen of the United States, "unless over 50% of the vessel's personnel complement are American citizens." He further stated that no enemy alien is permitted "to go or remain on board any vessel unless such enemy alien is a passenger on a vessel primarily engaged in the transportation of passengers for hire "110/" Furthermore, green (temporary) or pink identification cards with a diagonal stamp "ENEMY ALIEN" were to

Within the 1st Naval District in October 1941, the projected acquisition of 117 fishing vessels "would be of a not too serious nature. Much opposition from commercial interests of course would be encountered. A certain number of people would be forced out of employment, etc., but it is believed that it would not be long before the activities of the small vessels would be built up and a normal supply of fish would result." On October 17, 1942, the Captain of the Port of Atlantic City, New Jersey in the 4th Naval District issued regulations to ensure waterfront security, requiring that:¹¹³/

[n]o enemy alien will be allowed on any pier or wharf at any time. All persons frequenting boat-landings or docks occasionally – and all persons working on any boat-landing or dock – shall have in their possession at all times a Coast Guard Identification Card

No enemy alien, such as a citizen of Germany, Italy, or Japan, will be permitted on board of any boat at any time

No such boat will be rented to an enemy alien, and no enemy alien will be permitted on such boat at any time.

Concerned that the restrictions did not extend to American citizens and that fishermen, either native born or naturalized, "should be considered suspect," a District Intelligence Officer submitted a May 6, 1942 memorandum to the District Coast Guard Officer indicating the periodic submission of lists to Captains of the Port throughout the 1st Naval District. These lists would include: 115/

both citizen and alien fishermen who have participated in some suspicious activity, the evidence of which might be insufficient to warrant an indictment under the Espionage Laws, but whose continued presence on fishing vessels is undesirable because they

the only means now available to control the activities of suspect fishermen lie in the Anchorage Regulations It is considered that these regulations, which empower the Captains of the Ports to grant, refuse to grant, or to revoke any license heretofore granted to the Agent, Owner, or Master of any fishing vessel, may be construed to prevent the presence on board of suspect fishermen.

It concludes that "naturalized citizens who are suspected of subversive activities will have proceedings for denaturalization instituted against them." Id.

On December 7, 1941, the Gloucester, Massachusetts fishing vessel, Santa Maria, owned and mastered by Pietro Mercurio, a naturalized United States citizen, was boarded by the Coast Guard. Upon hearing the Italian language spoken on board, the Coast Guard immediately detained the captain and his crew, releasing Mercurio later that night. The members of his crew, unnaturalized Italian aliens, were kept overnight and prohibited from reboarding the boat; they subsequently worked at fish-processing plants until they gained citizenship. While this represented a hardship, Mercurio expressed that he understood the circumstances that necessitated a heightened concern for security. 116/

Restrictions placed on fishermen for security reasons varied from port to port. An August 26, 1942 12th Naval District memorandum, voicing agreement between the Navy and the Coast Guard and contrasting sharply with the position of the Army, stated that "fishermen must be covered by special rules at each port," that current restrictions are sufficient, and that further instructions to fishermen along the coast of the 12th Naval District would be "impracticable, unnecessary and too restrictive." The memorandum further stated that: 118/

[a]II fishermen are issued licenses to fish by the Captains of the Port. On these licenses there is printed the restrictions that are placed upon them which, generally speaking, are as follows: That the fishermen have perfect freedom to fish anywhere on the coast that

The memorandum continues: "The Army desires one hundred percent security and if steps are taken towards this end as desired by the Army there would be hardly a fish caught on the coast," and concludes that "any attempt at landing, entering or leaving any of the ports not covered by special regulations would lay the offending fisherman open to arrest or to be fired upon as he would be violating the instructions printed on his license."

^{18/} Id. The Commander of the Patrol Force in the 12th Naval District stated in a memorandum of February 26, 1942, that "the licenses of [violators] should be recalled temporarily"; the licenses of boats that "repeatedly violate existing regulations . . . should be recalled and withheld for a longer period of time, to punish the owners for flagrant disregard of existing orders." Memorandum from the Commander, Patrol Force, 12th Naval District, to the Commandant, 12th Naval District (Feb. 26, 1942). Two weeks later, on March 11, the Captain of the Port, San Francisco, stated that "This office has been suspending the licenses of violators of the restricted areas. Violators are being notified that a second violation will result in the revocation of their licenses and such additional punitive action under existing law as the circumstances appear to warrant." Memorandum from the Captain of Port, 12th Naval District, to Commander, Patrol Force, 12th Naval District (Mar. 11, 1942). they see fit (except, of course, this does not include restrictions around the ports that have defensive sea areas). That they are absolutely forbidden to enter or leave any port in darkness or low visibility, or to land. Any violation of the restrictions printed on the license causes, of course, the forfeiture of the license and prosecution if considered necessary.

In an October 28, 1942 letter to the Pittsburg, California Chamber of Commerce, which had inquired about Italian fishermen, the Captain of the Port for San Francisco relied on the recent order of Lt. General DeWitt and the Anchorage Regulations contained in the Espionage Act of June 15, 1917, writing: 119/

No departure license shall be [g]ranted to any vessel having an enemy alien on board in any capacity, and . . . no vessel shall move in the local waters of the United States which has or intends to have an enemy alien on board in any capacity

Inasmuch as the Captain of the Port is governed by these Anchorage Regulations in [t]he issuance of permits of fishing vessels he has no authority to issue permits to boats with Italian citizens aboard in any capacity

The clear effect on Italian fishermen is typified in a letter Giovanni Olivieri wrote on December 31, 1941 to United States Senator Sheridan Downey, stating that he had been denied permission to continue fishing: 120/

Forty years ago I came to America from Italy. For the past 38 years I have been a fisherman in Santa Cruz and have fished the waters of Monterey Bay. I am not an American citizen and cannot become one because I cannot read or write. I have been deprived of the right to fish because I am not a citizen. I have two sons in the navy and one son in the army. I have a wife and three daughters at home to support. I cannot get outside work because I am not a citizen. I am as loyal and devoted to this country as though I were born here. During my forty years in America I have never been arrested and have always worked from twelve to fourteen hours a day.

The most severe application of these restrictions occurred in the Western Defense Command and represented, at times, a conflict between the services. The Navy sought reasonable safeguards to minimize the impact on the fishing industry, while the Army's sole consideration was security. Because the 11th and 12th Naval Districts contained sizable fishing fleets comprising Italian immigrants, the impact on this community was substantial. Other than instances where fishermen repeatedly Letter from Giovanni Olivieri, to Senator Sheridan Downey (Dec. 31, 1941). The Navy responded to Senator Downey on March 7, 1942, that "such restrictions may, in some instances, result in hardship to some aliens whose loyalty to this country may be above reproach. However, as a matter of policy, the Navy Department believes that the question of whether certain alien fishermen will be permitted to fish is one which should be decided by appropriate governmental authorities in the locality, after investigation of the individual has been made." violated restrictions, 121/ boats were not impounded. Rather, they were requisitioned for compensation during a period of national emergency. The record reveals efforts by the government to ameliorate the impact of these requisitions and restrictions on the fishing industry and, to some extent, upon citizens and aliens of Italian descent.

A September 30, 1941 memorandum from the San Pedro, California Port Director's Office, 11th Naval District, to the Joint Merchant Vessel Board, noted that the selection of larger purse seiners and tuna boats for requisition in San Diego and San Pedro would adversely affect the canneries since they rely on those vessels for their supply of yellow-fin tuna. The 12th Naval District, responding to concerns about the effect of restrictions on the fishing industry, stated on January 30, 1942 that the Navy was "permitting as liberal a scope of operations as is consistent with national security."

Fishing vessels share in whatever protection is afforded to commercial vessels. Naturally, the extent of such protection is confidential. Crab-fishing vessels operating out of San Francisco at present do so under escort of a small Coast Guard boat, the purpose of which is to control the fishermen and serve to identify them in relation to our own forces.

A 12th Naval District memorandum to the Commandant, dated March 5, 1942, acknowledged the war's adverse effect on the fishing industry and recommended relieving that industry of "all unnecessary restrictions." On July 25, 1942, regulations governing the San Francisco Maritime Control Area were issued to supplement Presidential Proclamation 2543, primarily authorizing sardine boats to fish and to make passage at night, "provided they have complied with the law in all respects as to licenses, departure permits, crew lists and crew identification." After compliance with these requirements, the naval district would issue a clearance authorization which was kept on board the vessel at all times. For example, the 11th Naval District issued

In the 5th Naval District, the Port Director wrote the following to boat owners on July 30, 1942: "It is not the Commandant's intention to requisition fishing vessels urgently needed in the fishing industry. However, it is hoped that some fishing vessels may be found which can be spared Should you decide that you do not wish to sell the vessel, no reply is necessary." 128/

The Commander of the Office of the Western Sea Frontier, on March 19, 1943, indicated a willingness to continue to work with the fishing industry and with the California Division of Fish and Game to ease restrictions wherever possible. The memorandum cited directives in the 11th and 12th Naval Districts authorizing sardine fishing vessels to break radio silence to report schools of fish to other vessels. 129/

The Navy Department distributed a memorandum to the commandants of all naval districts, dated February 26, 1943, 130/1 which stated:

Due to the needs of the fishing industry, chartered fishing vessels and fishing vessels in the Coast Guard Reserve will be selected for withdrawal from service wherever feasible.

Chartered fishing vessels will be reported to the Vice Chief of Naval Operations who will request the War Shipping Administration to cancel the charters and return them to their owners.

Requisitions, port restrictions, and loss of fishing privileges were imposed on many fishermen immediately prior to and during World War II. More than mere inconveniences, these restrictions interfered with their ability to make a living and disrupted the industry. The effects were felt by natural-born and naturalized United States citizens, as well as aliens and those designated "enemy aliens."

E. WARTIME POLICY ON ALIEN EMPLOYMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AND IMPACT ON RAILROAD WORKERS OF ITALIAN ANCESTRY

1. INTRODUCTION

Section 3 of the Act, subsection 10, requires the Attorney General to conduct a review of Italian-American railroad workers who were prevented from working in prohibited areas, presumably as a result of federal-government action. Research indicates that employment discrimination against aliens was widespread during the war and even before the war. Such discrimination stemmed from a misunderstanding of the law and public policy regarding the employment of immigrants, prejudice against non-whites and immigrants, and in some instances, misplaced patriotism. But evidence of extensive government efforts to fight discrimination against aliens, including enemy aliens and aliens of allied nations, also exists.

Although historical evidence indicated that many Japanese-American railroad workers were fired or prevented from working in the military zones on the West Coast, such widespread firings did not happen to railroad workers of Italian ancestry. Although employment discrimination may have been most severe against those of Japanese ancestry, there was some discrimination against other enemy aliens and such discrimination even extended to aliens of allied nations. As cited below, two Italian railroad workers were transferred to other positions or locations so that they could continue to work, several Italian employees were temporarily removed from work for a week and then allowed to return, and one employee was removed for thirty days before he was reinstated. One Italian employee was initially fired, but after his attorney's inquiry the government responded that the alien could be rehired unless he was found to be dangerous or had committed sabotage against railroad property.

Extensive research from private railroad companies, state historical societies, and the National Archives in Washington, D.C. and College Park, Maryland have failed to yield evidence to support assertions of widespread firings of railroad employees of Italian ancestry or that any loss of employment resulted from federal-government action. 131/

The Department of Justice reviewed records of several Department of Justice officials dealing with aliens including Attorney General Biddle, James Rowe, Jr., Assistant to the Attorney General, and Edward Ennis, Director of the Alien Enemy Control Unit, along with records of the Office of Defense

2. GOVERNMENT POLICY

The government actively discouraged discrimination against alien employment for several months before our entry into World War II. On January 30, 1941, the Social Security Board, Bureau of Employment Security, issued a report showing that in every industrial state, employers were refusing to hire "non-citizens" in defense and defense-related industries. The report emphasized that Congress had confined restrictions on the employment of aliens in private industry to those working on government contracts in the manufacture of aircraft and in the performance of secret, confidential, or restricted government contracts. 133/

The extent of discrimination nationwide compelled President Roosevelt, on June 25, 1941, to issue Executive Order 8802, which prohibited discrimination by the federal government and by government contractors. The order reaffirmed the policy that there "shall be no discrimination in the employment of workers in defense industries or Government because of race, creed, color or national origin." It also established the Committee on Fair Employment Practice within the Office of Production Management to investigate complaints of discrimination, including discrimination against alienage, and to take appropriate steps to redress grievances. 135/

On December 26, 1941, the Department of Justice issued a news release containing a statement by Attorney General Biddle regarding "the problem of discrimination against aliens in private employment." In this statement, Biddle declared: $\frac{137}{2}$

Transportation, Assistant Secretary of Defense John J. McCloy, Western Defense Command, and the Office of Provost Marshal; also reviewed, documents from the Union Pacific Railroad, the Burlington Northern Railroad (which was the Great Northern Railroad during World War II), the Southern Pacific Railroad, the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railroad, Nevada Northern Railway, and the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific Railroad Company.

To bar aliens from employment is both shortsighted and wasteful [I]t is the stated policy of the Federal Government that there shall be no discrimination in the employment of workers in defense industries because of race, color or national origin.

Attorney General Biddle indicated that the only restriction of any type on persons of Japanese ancestry was one that applied to all aliens. In the case of "secret, confidential or restricted Government contracts," and in contracts for aircraft parts, employers were required to obtain permission for employment from the military department concerned. Attorney General Biddle indicated that both the Army and the Navy had "regular procedures" to screen requests and had "passed upon thousands of them." The percentage of applications that had been denied was "negligible." The Attorney General condemned discrimination against aliens: 138/

There are no other Federal laws restricting the employment of aliens by private employers in national defense industries, and there are no Federal laws whatsoever restricting the employment of foreign-born American citizens of any particular national origin.

There is no reason in the world why loyal persons, either aliens or Americans of foreign birth, should not be employed by American Industry, and there is no possible justification for discharging such employes [sic]. The Federal Government condemns such discrimination

Documents also indicate that the Army and the Federal Bureau of Investigation discouraged such firings. President Roosevelt issued a statement on January 2, 1942, expressing his concern over discrimination against aliens:

I am deeply concerned over the increasing number of reports of employers discharging workers who happen to be aliens or even foreign-born citizens. This is a very serious matter. It is one thing to safeguard American industry and particularly defense industry against sabotage; but it is very much another to throw out of work honest and loyal people who, except for the accident of birth, are sincerely patriotic.

Such a policy is as stupid as it is unjust . . . I urge all private employers to adopt a sane policy regarding aliens and foreign born citizens

There is no law providing against employment of aliens except in special defense work of a secret nature, and even in such work, the employer may hire an alien with the permission of the Army or Navy. . . .

President Roosevelt issued a similar statement on July 11, 1942 regarding the employment of aliens, in which he indicated that persons should not be refused employment solely on the basis of alien status. 140/

^{140/} Press Release, The White House, Statement by the President (July 11, 1942).

Individuals also had access to the Committee on Fair Employment Practice. Letters written to the Alien Enemy Control Unit of the Department of Justice, alleging discrimination on the basis of alien status, were frequently referred to this Committee. During the war, the Committee held extensive hearings on complaints of discrimination within the railroad industry.

3. IMPACT ON RAILROAD EMPLOYEES

Union Pacific documents reveal that its dismissal of approximately one hundred and forty employees of Japanese ancestry was not the result of government action, but was based on the decision of company officials. Specifically, the decision to fire Japanese employees was the personal decision of W.M. Jeffers, the president of the railroad. 141/

A series of letters between the City Attorney for Rock Island, Illinois and Edward J. Ennis, Director of the Alien Enemy Control Unit at the Department of Justice, regarding the dismissal of an Italian employee, describes the case of Augustine Chidicamo, an enemy alien, who was dismissed about March 1942 by the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific Railroad Company because of his enemy alien status. Mr. Chidicamo had worked for the railroad for thirty-three years and was advised that the railroad would take him back with the approval of federal authorities. Lee Herbert, City Attorney for Rock Island, wrote to Ennis to determine if there was any way that Chidicamo could be re-employed. 142/1 In a letter dated April 9, 1942, Ennis explained that this incident and incidents with other railroads apparently resulted from a misunderstanding of a proclamation of President Roosevelt that "was not intended to forbid the employment of enemy aliens upon railroads in the United States, it was merely intended to forbid any alien enemy to be in a place in which his presence is not readily explainable." 143/1 Ennis further stated that "[h]is employment should be forbidden

^{141/} In a letter to the Chairman of the Executive Committee, Jeffers stated that "the instructions we have been working under were that Japanese were to be continued in employment unless and until we had evidence that they were dangerous." Jeffers then detailed why he "arranged to remove all" employees of Japanese ancestry: a recent incident of "possible sabotage" at Howell, Wyoming; the fact that train, engine and shop personnel had complained for a month about the employment of Japanese; his receipt of several telegrams from organizations and individuals demanding the immediate removal of these employees of Japanese ancestry from their positions; and concerns that labor organizations might refuse to work unless he fired those of Japanese ancestry. He stated in this letter that, after considering these factors, he "felt impelled to take immediate action." He noted further that he spoke to United States Attorney General Francis Biddle and sent him copies of the letters directing the firings. Letter from W.M. Jeffers, President, Union Pacific, to Chairman, Executive Committee (Feb. 14, 1942).

only if there are any suspicions about his loyalty to this Government and if there is any danger of sabotage upon the property of the railroad." In closing, Ennis stated, "You are authorized to refer to the content of this letter as an expression of the attitude of this Government toward employment by the railroads of aliens of enemy nationality."

In a letter dated February 18, 1942, Southern Pacific Railroad ordered the termination of approximately forty employees of Japanese ancestry and the immediate evacuation of such employees from company housing; no termination was ordered for aliens of other ancestries. 146/ A mailgram, also dated February 18, 1942, discussed the government's notice to nationals of Germany, Japan, and Italy that they were not permitted to live or work in certain areas, including Tiburon, California, and that restrictions were also issued for the movements of enemy aliens during the night hours that required them to be at home between 9:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. The company questioned whether alien employees retained their employment relationship and seniority rights with the company and indicated that it had Italian and German nationals, some at the Tiburon facility. The document describes two Italian employees—a seal clerk who lived in a restricted area and a janitor at Sausalito who was assigned to work at night between 6:00 p.m. and 3:00 a.m. It is noted on the document that the janitor's hours were changed so that he could continue to work and that the clerk was filling the job at Sausalito where the restrictions would not apply until the shipyard was completed. Finally, a letter dated April 11, 1942 disclosed that an Italian employee, Vito Marketallo, was removed from employment as a crossing flagman for thirty days and then returned to service. The document indicated that he was taken out of service because of the evacuation and curfew ruling. A handwritten notation on the letter a few days later, dated April 14, 1942, indicated that he was to return to service. 149/

A few documents regarding the Nevada Northern Corporation indicated that all Japanese, German, and Italian aliens were removed from work and asked to remain at home after December 11, 1941. The company based this action on the advice of local counsel and that of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The company removed fourteen Japanese aliens and six Italian aliens. On December 19, 1941, the company contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation to discuss the Italian aliens who had for many years worked for them and many of whom had taken out papers for naturalization. In responding to whether they could be returned to work, the Federal Bureau of Investigation's advice was to inquire among co-workers if any statements were made against the United States or in support of Axis governments.

F. SUMMARY

This Justice Department will never waver in our defense of the Constitution nor relent in our defense of civil rights. The American spirit that rose from the rubble in New York knows no prejudice and defies division by race, ethnicity, or religion. The spirit which binds us and the values that define us will light America's path from this darkness.

Attorney General John Ashcroft September 24, 2001

After the December 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, citizens and aliens of Italian descent were subjected to restrictions, including curfews, searches, confiscations of property, the loss of livelihood, and internment. Individuals residing in "prohibited zones" were required to move from their homes and were excluded from certain areas. And persons of Italian ancestry who were not United States citizens were declared enemy aliens and were required to carry identification cards designating them as such. These wartime restrictions were sanctioned by the Alien Enemy Act of 1798, Presidential Proclamation No. 2527, Executive Order 9066, and various other Presidential Proclamations, Department of Justice regulations, and Public Proclamations issued by the defense commands.

The Wartime Violation of Italian Americans Civil Liberties Act provides that this report must include, among other things, "[a] review of the wartime restrictions on Italian Americans to determine how civil liberties can be better protected during national emergencies." The Department of Justice believes that the federal government's reaction to the recent, tragic events of September 11, 2001 demonstrates that civil liberties are being protected through adherence to the United States Constitution. By sending the clear message to the American people that the Constitution and American values will not fall victim to terrorists, our national leaders have created an environment in which the unconstitutional violation of civil liberties will not be tolerated.

In an address to a Joint Session of Congress and the American people on September 20, 2001, President George W. Bush stated that the United States must abide by the principles upon which the country was founded and treat all individuals fairly and with dignity:

I ask you to uphold the values of America, and remember why so many have come here. We are in a fight for our principles, and our first responsibility is to live by them. No one should be singled out for unfair treatment or unkind words because of their ethnic background or religious faith.

On September 17, 2001, FBI Director Robert Mueller had stated that the investigation of the attack on the United States had not targeted and would not target individuals based on their ethnic background:

When we seek to interview and question an individual, we are doing so based on predications that the individual may have information relating to the acts that took place last week. We do not, have not, will not target people based solely on their ethnicity, period, point blank.

Our national leaders have also addressed the rise in bias-motivated crimes in the United States since the attack by stating, in no uncertain terms, that such acts of violence and threats of violence will not be tolerated. On September 13, 2001—just two days after the attack on the United States—Attorney General John Ashcroft addressed reports of violence and threats of violence in the United States against Arab Americans and other Americans of Middle Eastern and South Asian descents:

We must not descend to the level of those who perpetrated Tuesday's violence by targeting individuals based on their race, their religion, or their national origin. Such reports of violence and threats are in direct opposition to the very principles and laws of the United States and will not be tolerated.

The Attorney General's admonition was echoed that day by Ralph F. Boyd, Jr., the Assistant Attorney General for the Civil Rights Division, who stated that "[a]ny threats of violence or discrimination against Arab or Muslim Americans or Americans of South Asian descents are not just wrong and un-American, but also are unlawful and will be treated as such."

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

In testimony before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary on September 25, 2001, Attorney General Ashcroft reported on the Justice Department's actions with respect to bias-motivated crimes following the September 11 attack:

The Department of Justice is firmly committed to pursuing these misguided wrongdoers vigorously. . . . Let there be no mistake: The Department of Justice will not tolerate acts of violence or discrimination against people in this country based on their race, national origin, or religion.

These statements demonstrate the federal government's recognition that it must safeguard the constitutional rights of individuals while protecting the safety and security of individuals during times of national emergency. By vigorously enforcing anti-discrimination laws, the federal government has demonstrated that civil liberties are being protected through adherence to the Constitution.

An Act

To provide for the preparation of a Government report detailing injustices suffered by Italian Americans during World War II, and a formal acknowledgment of such injustices by the President.

Nov. 7, 2000 [H.R. 2442]

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Wartime Violation of Italian American Civil Liberties Act".

Wartime Violation of Italian American Civil Liberties Act. 50 USC app. 1981 note.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The freedom of more than 600,000 Italian-born immigrants in the United States and their families was restricted during World War II by Government measures that branded them "enemy aliens" and included carrying identification cards, travel restrictions, and seizure of personal property.

(2) During World War II more than 10,000 Italian Americans living on the West Coast were forced to leave their homes and prohibited from entering coastal zones. More than 50,000 were subjected to curfews.

(3) During World War II thousands of Italian American immigrants were arrested, and hundreds were interned in military camps.

(4) Hundreds of thousands of Italian Americans performed exemplary service and thousands sacrificed their lives in defense of the United States.

- (5) At the time, Italians were the largest foreign-born group in the United States, and today are the fifth largest immigrant group in the United States, numbering approximately 15 million.
- (6) The impact of the wartime experience was devastating to Italian American communities in the United States, and its effects are still being felt.
- (7) A deliberate policy kept these measures from the public during the war. Even 50 years later much information is still classified, the full story remains unknown to the public, and it has never been acknowledged in any official capacity by the United States Government.

SEC. 3. REPORT.

The Attorney General shall conduct a comprehensive review of the treatment by the United States Government of Italian Americans during World War II, and not later than 1 year after the Deadline. 50 USC app. 1981 note. date of the enactment of this Act shall submit to the Congress a report that documents the findings of such review. The report shall cover the period between September 1, 1939, and December 31, 1945, and shall include the following:

(1) The names of all Italian Americans who were taken into custody in the initial roundup following the attack on Pearl Harbor, and prior to the United States declaration of war against Italy.

(2) The names of all Italian Americans who were taken into custody.

(3) The names of all Italian Americans who were interned and the location where they were interned.

(4) The names of all Italian Americans who were ordered to move out of designated areas under the United States Army's "Individual Exclusion Program".

(5) The names of all Italian Americans who were arrested for curfew, contraband, or other violations under the authority of Executive Order No. 9066.

(6) Documentation of Federal Bureau of Investigation raids on the homes of Italian Americans.

(7) A list of ports from which Italian American fishermen were restricted.

(8) The names of Italian American fishermen who were prevented from fishing in prohibited zones and therefore unable to pursue their livelihoods.

(9) The names of Italian Americans whose boats were confiscated.

(10) The names of Italian American railroad workers who were prevented from working in prohibited zones. (11) A list of all civil liberties infringements suffered by Italian Americans during World War II, as a result of Executive Order No. 9066, including internment, hearings without benefit of counsel, illegal searches and seizures, travel restrictions, enemy alien registration requirements, employment restrictions, confiscation of property, and forced evacuation from homes.

(12) An explanation of whether Italian Americans were subjected to civil liberties infringements, as a result of Executive Order No. 9066, and if so, why other Italian Americans were not.

(13) A review of the wartime restrictions on Italian Americans to determine how civil liberties can be better protected during national emergencies.

SEC. 4. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the story of the treatment of Italian Americans during World War II needs to be told in order to acknowledge that these events happened, to remember those whose lives were unjustly disrupted and whose freedoms were violated, to help repair the damage to the Italian American community, and to discourage the occurrence of similar injustices and violations of civil liberties in the future;

(2) Federal agencies, including the Department of Education and the National Endowment for the Humanities, should support projects such as—

Records.

(A) conferences, seminars, and lectures to heighten awareness of this unfortunate chapter in our Nation's his-

(B) the refurbishment of and payment of all expenses associated with the traveling exhibit "Una Storia Segreta", exhibited at major cultural and educational institutions throughout the United States; and

 (\tilde{C}) documentaries to allow this issue to be presented to the American public to raise its awareness;

(3) an independent, volunteer advisory committee should be established comprised of representatives of Italian American organizations, historians, and other interested individuals to assist in the compilation, research, and dissemination of information concerning the treatment of Italian Americans;

(4) after completion of the report required by this Act, financial support should be provided for the education of the American public through the production of a documentary film suited for public broadcast; and

(5) the President should, on behalf of the United States Government, formally acknowledge that these events during World War II represented a fundamental injustice against Italian Americans.

Approved November 7, 2000.

^{*} Although Italian detainees who were identified as Italian seamen were eliminated wherever possible, it was not always easy to distinguish between Italian-Americans and Italian seamen so this list may include some seamen.

This list was compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice after extensive review of historical records (see Appendix M), personal interviews, and other sources (see Appendix N). The list may include names more than once where source material captured the identity of individuals differently, and may fail to identify individuals whose names were not contained within the memoranda and reports reviewed. Consequently, this list, while representing the most accurate and thorough accounting possible, should be regarded in that light.

^{*} Although Italian detainees who were identified as Italian seamen were eliminated wherever possible, it was not always easy to distinguish between Italian-Americans and Italian seamen so this list may include some seamen.

This list was compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice after extensive review of historical records (see Appendix M), personal interviews, and other sources (see Appendix N). The list may include names more than once where source material captured the identity of individuals differently, and may fail to identify individuals whose names were not contained within the memoranda and reports reviewed. Consequently, this list, while representing the most accurate and thorough accounting possible, should be regarded in that light.

^{*} Although Italian detainees who were identified as Italian seamen were eliminated wherever possible, it was not always easy to distinguish between Italian-Americans and Italian seamen so this list may include some seamen.

This list was compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice after extensive review of historical records (see Appendix M), personal interviews, and other sources (see Appendix N). The list may include names more than once where source material captured the identity of individuals differently, and may fail to identify individuals whose names were not contained within the memoranda and reports reviewed. Consequently, this list, while representing the most accurate and thorough accounting possible, should be regarded in that light.

This list was compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice after extensive review of historical records (see Appendix M), personal interviews, and other sources (see Appendix N). The list may include names more than once where source material captured the identity of individuals differently, and may fail to identify individuals whose names were not contained within the memoranda and reports reviewed. Consequently, this list, while representing the most accurate and thorough accounting possible, should be regarded in that light.

This list was compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice after extensive review of historical records (see Appendix M), personal interviews, and other sources (see Appendix N). The list may include names more than once where source material captured the identity of individuals differently, and may fail to identify individuals whose names were not contained within the memoranda and reports reviewed. Consequently, this list, while representing the most accurate and thorough accounting possible, should be regarded in that light.

^{*} Only the major ports within each naval district are listed, although smaller ports may have been affected. A comprehensive list of ports associated with each naval district during World War II could not be found, even after extensive research. The naval districts listed here represent the coastal districts in the contiguous United States; other districts, such as the 9th, 10th, and 14th districts, were either non-contiguous or interior districts. A 2nd Naval District did not exist.

Section 3 (9) – The Names of Fishermen of Italian Ancestry Whose Boats were Confiscated

The following names, compiled by the U.S. Department of Justice after extensive review of historical records, personal interviews, and other sources, are persons of Italian ancestry whose fishing vessels were impounded for repeated incursions into restricted waters. These names were derived from a memorandum from the Commanding Officer, U.S. Naval Net Depot, Tiburon, California, to the Commandant, 12th Naval District (March 3, 1942). While similar memoranda may exist concerning additional vessels, our research revealed that the acquisition of fishing vessels was overwhelmingly through formal charter or purchase, as opposed to confiscation (see Section II. D. 2 of this report).

Appendix K

Section 3 (11) A List of Wartime Restrictions on Persons of Italian Ancestry as a Result of Executive Order No. 9066

Subsection 11 of Section 3 of the Act requires that this report provide a list of wartime restrictions on persons of Italian ancestry as a result of Executive Order 9066. As more fully discussed in the text, although Executive Order 9066 was not issued until February 19, 1942, federal actions affecting persons of Italian ancestry had occurred since December 7, 1941. Actions affecting persons of Italian ancestry prior to February 19, 1942 were based on other federal laws and regulations, including Presidential Proclamation 2527 and the regulations issued thereunder. For example, pursuant to Presidential Proclamation 2527, aliens of Italian ancestry were detained and a few hundred were subsequently interned.

Many of the restrictions imposed in December 1941 and early 1942 were incorporated by reference into the military proclamations issued in March 1942, pursuant to Executive Order 9066. Those restrictions are listed here with an explanation that such restrictions had been imposed before Executive Order 9066 went into effect.

1. Individual Exclusion Hearings without Benefit of Counsel

Although enemy aliens of Italian ancestry were subject to apprehension and internment without a trial, aliens were provided a hearing before the Exclusion Hearing Board. Aliens were allowed to have a friend, relative, or other advisor, including an attorney, present at the hearing. The attorney was allowed to testify as a witness, but the attorney was not allowed to cross-examine other witnesses or to present argument before the Board.

2. Travel Restrictions

Restrictions imposed on enemy aliens of Italian ancestry limited the distances they were allowed to travel. During the day, aliens were required to be at their place of residence or employment, or in transit between those two places, or within five miles from their place of residence.

These travel restrictions began on December 8, 1941 with the issuance of Presidential Proclamation 2527. Similar travel restrictions were included in the Western Defense Command, Public Proclamation No. 3, issued on March 24, 1942, under the authority of Executive Order 9066.

3. Curfew Restrictions

Restrictions imposed on enemy aliens of Italian ancestry limited the evening hours they were allowed to be away from their residences. Resident aliens were forbidden from being outdoors between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Presidential Proclamation 2527, issued on December 8, 1941, delegated authority to the Attorney General to establish various restrictions, including curfews, for persons of Italian ancestry. Similar curfew restrictions contained in the Western Defense Command's Public Proclamation No. 3 were issued on March 24, 1942, under the authority of Executive Order 9066.

4. Enemy Alien Registration Requirements

Enemy aliens of Italian ancestry were required to file change of address notices and change of employment forms when they moved or changed jobs.

These registration requirements began on December 8, 1941, with the issuance of Presidential Proclamation 2527. The change of address requirement was included in the Western Defense Command, Public Proclamation No. 1, issued on March 2, 1942 and in Proclamation No. 2, on March 16, 1942, under the authority of Executive Order 9066.

5. Employment Restrictions

Employment restrictions against aliens were widespread both before and during the war. Such restrictions were imposed on employment related to secret, confidential, or restricted government contracts or aircraft contracts where permission of the Army and Navy was required. Alien fishermen were subject to restrictions on where and when they could fish, while alien railroad workers may have been removed from work or transferred to other positions or locations where the curfew and travel restrictions were not in effect.

Travel restrictions began on December 8, 1941, with the issuance of Presidential Proclamation 2527. These restrictions were included in the Western Defense Command's Public Proclamation No. 3 issued on March 24, 1942, under the authority of Executive Order No. 9066. Other employment restrictions for military areas began with regulations issued by the Attorney General in January 1941, establishing areas in which enemy aliens of Italian ancestry were restricted. Similar prohibited and restricted areas were continued by Public Proclamation No. 1, issued on March 2, 1942, under the authority of Executive Order 9066.

6. Forced Evacuation from Homes

Persons of Italian ancestry were forced to temporarily evacuate their homes if they came within certain designated military zones, particularly along the West Coast. If a mother or father was an alien and the rest of the family had United States citizenship, either the individual alien left the family behind or the family, as a whole, relocated outside the exclusion area.

Presidential Proclamation 2527, issued on December 8, 1941, delegated authority to the Attorney General to establish such military areas to exclude or restrict persons. Pursuant to that authority, the Attorney General issued regulations in January 1941 that established prohibited areas for enemy aliens of Italian ancestry and required their evacuation in February 1942. This designation of restricted areas was continued by Public Proclamation No. 1, issued on March 2, 1942, under the authority of Executive Order 9066.

EXECUTIVE ORDER No. 9066

AUTHORIZING THE SECRETARY OF WAR TO PRESCRIBE MILITARY AREAS

Whereas the successful prosecution of the war requires every possible protection against espionage and against sabotage to national-defense material, national-defense premises, and national-defense utilities as defined in Section 4, Act of April 20, 1918, 40 Stat. 533, as amended by the Act of November 30, 1940, 54 Stat. 1220, and the Act of August 21, 1941, 55 Stat. 655 (U. S. C., Title 50, Sec. 104):

Now, Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, and Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, I hereby authorize and direct the Secretary of War, and the Military Commanders whom he may from time to time designate, whenever he or any designated Commander deems such action necessary or desirable, to prescribe military areas in such places and of such extent as he or the appropriate Military Commander may determine, from which any or all persons may be excluded, and with respect to which, the right of any persons to enter, remain in, or leave shall be subject to whatever restrictions the Secretary of War or the appropriate Military Commander may impose in his discretion. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to provide for residents of any such area who are excluded therefrom, such transportation, food, shelter, and other accommodations as may be necessary, in the judgment of the Secretary of War or the said Military Commander, and until other arrangements are made, to accomplish the purpose of this order. The designation of military areas in any region or locality shall supersede designations of prohibited and restricted areas by the Attorney General under the Proclamations of December 7 and 8, 1941, and shall supersede the responsibility and authority of the Attorney General under the said Proclamations in respect of such prohibited and restricted areas.

I hereby further authorize and direct the Secretary of War and the said Military Commanders to take such other steps as he or the appropriate Military Commander may deem advisable to enforce compliance with the restrictions applicable to each Military area hereinabove authorized to be designated, including the use of Federal troops and other Federal Agencies, with authority to accept assistance of state and local agencies.

I hereby further authorize and direct all Executive Departments, independent establishments and other Federal Agencies, to assist the Secretary of War or the said Military Commanders in carrying out this Executive Order, including the furnishing of medical aid, hospitalization, food, clothing, transportation, use of land, shelter, and other suplies, equipment, utilities, facilities, and services.

This order shall not be construed as modifying or limiting in any way the authority heretofore granted under Executive Order No. 8972, dated December 12, 1941, nor shall it be construed as limiting or modifying the duty and responsibility of the Federal Bureau of Investigations, with respect to the investigation of alleged acts of sabotage or the duty and responsibility of the Attorney General and the Department of Justice under the Proclamations of December 7 and 8, 1941, prescribing regulations for the conduct and control of alien enemies, except as such duty and responsibility is superseded by the designation of military areas hereunder.
